

Mindset Questionnaire

Since you are your own boss, these questions will help you take an objective look at yourself as a “boss.” There are no right or wrong answers, only questions for you to ponder.

What kind of boss am I?

True or False: I give myself reasonable time to complete projects and meet deadlines.

True or False: I treat myself fairly and with respect (no negative self-talk, please!)

True or False: I invest in training and education to grow and become a better blogger

True or False: I am fairly compensated for my work. I give myself regular breaks.

True or False: I spend adequate time planning out and organizing my work.

True or False: Even if I'm not yet able to take a significant salary, I value my time and spend it wisely.

Am I a “professional” blogger? (Am I approaching blogging as a profession or a hobby?)

True or False: I have invested in my site the best tools and technology I can afford.

True or False: I spend time on education and training.

True or False: I meet deadlines and adjust my work schedule and commitments if necessary. If I'm not able to meet deadlines, I am willing to scale back.

True or False: I am satisfied with the quality of work that I do (understanding that I also hope to continually improve).

True or False: My knowledge and blogging skills are growing. I am measurably more advanced than when I started.

True or False: I want to earn a substantial amount of income from my blog.

True or False: I blog to serve my readers.

True or False: My family knows that I am serious about blogging and they can see this in how I approach my work.